For the project curator Alexandra Dementyeva, as well as for the artists of the Open School "Manege/ Media Art Lab", Death of Tarelkin production engages in a dialogue first of all with the legendary one of 1922 by Vsevolod Meyerhold. Meyerhold interpreted the grotesque comedy as a modernist story — about a transformation of a person into a screw or a small wheel of red tape bureaucratic machine. Creators of today's production, by transferring the action into today's (or tomorrow's) day, offer audience a chance to meet an updated modification of bureaucratic machine. Thanks to the newest technologies their authority over human being is invisible, ubiquitous and nocturnal. While a human being out of a screw or a wheel turns into a database, which can be copied, transferred, and used at one's discretion. Overall, there is no surprise that Kandid Tarelkin in the new production resurrects as a character resembling Edward Snowden.

XV Media Forum: From Montage of Attractions to Neurocinema

Current Media Forum is held at the Moscow International Film Festival for the 15th time. Such an age suggests not summing up but planning for the future.

During last 15 years thanks to the Media Forum the MIFF public had an opportunity to watch daring experiments in the field of interactive cinema, sound performance and video art. The Media Forum venues presented works of such well-known artists and filmmakers as Eija-Liisa Ahtila, Peter Greenaway, Isaac Julien, Zbigniew Rybczynski, Eve Sussman, Fiona Tan, Harun Farocki, Omer Fast, Yang Fudong, Gary Hill, Jesper Just...

In 2014 the Media Forum continues to explore new territories. This year's topics touch upon experiments at the junction of visual art, multimedia theatre and enactive cinema.

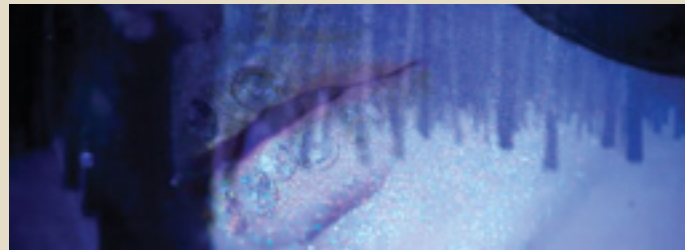

The central event of Media Forum would be conference From Montage of Attractions to Neurocinema, where art historians, artists and scientists- neurophysiologists will argue on prospects of theory and practice of neurocinema. Also the program would consist of the series of special events developing expanded cinema themes: premiere of media performance "The Death of Tarekin", exhibition "The Mist. The Stop" by Nikolay Onishchenko, show-manifest "Kino-harakiri" by the Studio of Individual Directing. All the projects explore the limits of interaction with audience, create the space of act, where all genres connect and new one emerges.

Almost a century later, artists and film directors, researchers of enactive cinema, rely on the authority of Battleship Potemkin and Ivan Grozny creator Sergey Eisenstein experiments. Enactive cinema today works with psycho-physic or emotional reactions of the viewers.

Conference From Montage of Attractions to Neurocinema will build a dialogue between avant-garde pioneers and recent acting artists and directors. Participants of the conference will argue on prospects of theory and practice of neurocinema, on filmmaking as an art of manipulation with viewer's conscience, on hypnotism of the media and on artist's eternal aspiration to enter the new spheres and to find new means of interaction with public. The first of the three sections of the conference is devoted to experiments of cinema avant-garde. Presentations and discussion within the second section are devoted to contemporary scientific quest in the field of neuro- and enactive cinema. Multidimensionality of psychic effect of music, cinema and theatre will be addressed by artists, film directors, music composers.

Nikolay Onishchenko. "The Mist. The Stop", 2014. Video installation

When the enactive cinema will come in future, already now Nikolay Onishchenko's exhibition "The Mist. The Stop", the show where visual part follow the emotional, will be shown in Manege. The show Musician and artist, Onishchenko uses the minimum of means of expression in order to transform video images of empty urban playgrounds and underground parking lots into a metaphor of inner landscape, a sign of renouncement, of a stop. Three installations engage for direct transit: from the city to the territory of inner meditation.

Show-manifest "Kino-harakiri". Studio of Individual Directing

June 23, 2014, 22:30 – June 24, 2014, 4:30
Moscow Museum, Zubovsky blvd, 2

The Kino-harakiri show is an attempt to turn the "death of the author" and of the cinema" narrative into a multimedia show. Kino-harakiri has the interaction between cinema, theatre and the word. The starting source is more than ten short films, produced by the students of the Studio of Individual Directing. . These very works are given at the mercy of viewers, critics and philosophers.
